

Tariff Battle Opens In House

Remedy for Business Depression Is Seen in Fordney Corrective Measure.

WOULD STABILIZE FARMING

Embargo on Dyes Is Expected to Further Infant Industry in This Country.

Washington.—The tariff battle was opened in the house Wednesday when the report on the Fordney bill was formally presented.

The report blames industrial depression on the present low democratic tariff and urges the Fordney bill as a corrective measure.

"With the ending of the war and the resumption of production in Europe, foreign competition is once more being keenly felt," the majority report says. "Industry and trade in the United States is at a low ebb. This industrial depression is the inevitable result of the offering of foreign goods upon the American market at less than the American cost of production."

"Prediction was made that the duties on farm products as carried in the bill would become the 'magna charta' for the protection of American standards of living and be the forerunner of uniform and universal prosperity."

"This is an all-American tariff on a normal basis," the report says.

"Would Help Farmer"

"When the farmer needs the protection of the tariff, his need is very serious."

"The best service a protective tariff can render the farmer is to effect a stabilization of his industry and of the prices received for his products so far as legislation can accomplish this and to secure a steady, normal and reasonable return rather than to have periods of high prices followed by periods of acute distress similar to that through which we are now passing and caused by a flood of imports of competitive products produced at a much lower cost than our growers can produce them; and, second, keep down the prices of the things he buys."

Paper on Free List

Regarding wood pulp and newsprint, the report says:

"The paper schedule, removes from the dutiable list wood pulp of all kinds and standard newsprint. The American consumption both of pulp and standard newspaper newsprint is greatly in excess of our production. It is therefore logical in the interest of conservation and suitable supply that these articles should be upon the free list. Sufficient authority is given the president to protect American interests should any discrimination be shown against us by foreign nations."

The republicans claimed that the enactment of the bill would do much to relieve the present depression.

"Rates of duties are proposed," the report states, "which will permit the products of American labor to compete with foreign goods in the American market without sacrificing the standards of the living."

Protect Dye Industry

Taking up the schedules in detail, the report says that the average rate on chemical oils and paints is 25 per cent ad valorem. The embargo on dyestuffs which can now be made in this country, is justified on the ground that the development of the dye industry is necessary to national defense. The report says "utterly unscrupulous as the German syndicate was before the war when its supremacy was uncontested, practicing ruthlessly every form of corrupt and unfair competition known to commerce, it is inevitable that in the almost immediate future when instead of safe supremacy it faces possible destruction, it will attack all competitors with reckless disregard of business decency."

"That attack inevitably will be concentrated upon us."

SEEK GIRL IN NEW MURDER MYSTERY

Body of Milwaukee Man Is Found Afloat on Lake With Knife in Heart.

Waukegan, Wis.—The body of Robert Traubert, Jr., 32, Milwaukee, was discovered early Wednesday in a drifting row boat on Lake Pewaukee, near here, a small penknife imbedded in his heart.

Waukegan officials are baffled over the mysterious death. Coroner F. L. Lee and District Attorney Allen Young are making an investigation.

Walter Traubert, brother, said he saw Robert at 8:30 o'clock Monday night in company with a girl. He did not know the woman, he told the authorities.

H. M. Traubert, another brother, said he saw Robert at midnight Monday night walking toward the lake. He was alone at the time.

The body was discovered by fishermen. Seven wounds had been inflicted, one behind the ear and five in the region of the heart.

The Traubert brothers were camping at the lake, with other companions.

Officials are now searching for the girl.

RAIL WORKERS TO VOTE ON WAGE CUT

Chicago.—The "big four" railroad brotherhoods were preparing ballots Wednesday for a vote of their members on the 15 per cent wage reduction ordered by the United States railroad labor board and which took effect July 1.

This follows action of the brotherhood chiefs after five days of conference in concluding they "cannot assume the responsibility of accepting any wage reductions."

The switchmen's union joined the brotherhoods, which include engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen, in calling for the plebiscite.

It is expected that other unions meeting here will take similar action. Immediate action of the railroad department of the American Federation of Labor which has already voted overwhelmingly against the cut, is not yet outlined.

While the vote is in progress, union chiefs hope to get together with rail executives to bargain for better terms.

The resolution adopted by the brotherhoods demanded that the working agreements between workers and management be kept intact.

PEACE RESOLVE TO BE ATTACKED IN HIGH COURT

Supreme Court Will Decide Whether Congress Can Declare Separate Peace.

By Herbert W. Walker

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Validity of the peace resolution will be challenged in legal battles which probably will be carried to the United States supreme court, Representative Flood, Virginia, ranking democrat on the foreign affairs committee, predicted Wednesday.

He declared that it will never be determined whether Congress can declare peace with Germany and Austria-Hungary until the high court passes on the question.

The suits to test the resolution probably will be brought by Germans whose property was seized by alien property custodian during the war, or may arise through other suits which would hinge on the date of official peace, Flood said.

The Germans, it is known, are planning a big legal drive against the federal government to regain their property. The peace resolution recently signed by the president confirms all the seizures, penalties and fines affecting these interests.

Hundreds of lawyers in New York have been retained by the Germans to fight for the property and the first suits probably will be to set aside the sales to American citizens which were made by the alien property custodian under the authority of an act of congress. These sales involved many of the invaluable dye patents, which are now in the hands of Americans.

According to constitutional lawyers in congress the supreme court never has passed directly on whether peace can be effected by congressional declaration. Some indirect references are being referred to as evidencing a belief of the court that congress has no such power.

Germany $50,000,000.

England $20,000,000.

Sweden $10,000,000.

United States $10,000,000.

Total $100,000,000.

"How is soviet Russia going to pay for these goods?" the Arcos headquarters was asked.

"We have set aside a definite sum of the Russian gold reserve for foreign purchases," was the reply.

"Russian mines are going to furnish new gold right along."

Home-Made Religion Is Replacing "Home Brew"

By United Press Leased Wire

Sandy Hook, Ky.—The home of "home brewers" was divided Wednesday over the latest concoction—home made religion.

Circuit Judge A. H. Frisco, before whom nearly 300 hill folks, of Elliot county, were to answer charges of moonshining Wednesday, was the center of the debate. He began injecting religion into the community where distilling has thrived for ages, by sentencing ten home brewers to prison Tuesday night when they failed to pay fines of $300 each.

Husky world war veterans, members of the Kentucky national guard, paced the village's muddy thoroughfare to prevent sentiment bubbling over. They carried service rifles in careless fashion in the crooks of their arms as they elbowed their way through the little packs of agitated men clustered in the public square. The grizzled hillbillies scowled and gave way.

Friends of the bootlegging band contended half the community had been in the business of making mountain dew. The other side "hoped the moonshiners had been scared out of the country."

BRING PRESSURE FOR DISARMAMENT

By L. C. Martin

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Disarmament supporters Wednesday demanded final action on the Borah proposal authorizing President Harding to call a conference of the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

The Borah plan has been approved but it is part of the naval appropriations bill as yet unpassed. Unless the bill is disposed of this week, disarmament may be left to be known they will bring before congress the need of getting into the hands of President Harding the authority the Borah plan provides.

Foreign statesmen are becoming more and more open in their hints to the United States that an invitation to a disarmament conference would be instantly accepted.

Senator Borah has had several extended conferences with Shigeo Suwayama of Kyoto university, Japan. Suwayama is in the United States in the interest of the disarmament movement. He said Wednesday that the Japanese people burdened with taxes, would warmly welcome the discussion of naval reduction or anything else that would relieve them of their taxes.

HEADS OF NATION TO STAY IN WASHINGTON

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—The United States government has decided to remain in Washington this summer.

President Harding, it was learned Wednesday, has about given up hope of going to Alaska, a trip which he planned to make if congress adjourned.

A poll of cabinet Wednesday showed that all of the members have made plans to stay here.

The senate Wednesday was on record against a recess. House leaders said they planned to work ahead on tariff and taxation.

Uncle Sam Is Out To Gather Small Change

Flying Squadron Will Visit Wisconsin Soon to Collect Sales Taxes Due.

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Uncle Sam Wednesday started to collect "the chicken feed" being held.

A force of 250 revenue officers directing 3,000 deputy collectors are out to collect delinquent sales taxes. Under the head of sales taxes comes the extra pennies on ice cream and the water, the luxury and semi-luxury levies.

"The flying squadron" of revenue officers now is paying particular attention to New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Dallas, Denver and San Francisco.

As soon as this force concludes its investigation in these cities, it will be transferred to Philadelphia, Birmingham, Louisville, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Fort Worth, Houston, Texas, and Salt Lake City.

IRISH EXPECT PEACE TO COME FROM NEW TRUCE

DeValera Believes England Can Set Christian Precedent for Whole World.

By United Press Leased Wire

New York.—Hope that the present negotiations will lead to peaceful settlement of the centuries old Irish question was expressed by Eamonn De Valera, president of the Irish republic, in an exclusive statement made to the United Press Wednesday.

The statement—the first authorized public expression of De Valera's views since the negotiations started—follows:

"We trust that the British prime minister's letter may prove to be the first step toward substituting a civilized basis of right and reason for that of barbaric violence in the arbitration of the question at issue between Ireland and Great Britain."

"Should the conference now initiated lead to an ultimate understanding and lasting peace between the peoples of these two islands, which have been in a state of war, or suspended war, for more than seven and a half centuries, it will set a worthy Christian precedent for the entire world."

"The British prestige will be restored, whilst young Ireland will live in history as having saved, by its courage and steadfastness, the ideals for which millions were led to offer their lives in the great war."

(Signed) "Eamonn De Valera."

Truce Is Asked

London.—The British government was reported Wednesday to have been asked to declare a truce in Ireland, preliminary to completion of dominion home rule negotiations.

Jan Smuts, premier of South Africa, returned from Dublin and immediately went into conference with Premier Lloyd George, Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, and Lord Middleton, one of the Unionist representatives in London's meeting with Eamonn De Valera.

Smuts was understood to have presented the viewpoint of the Sinn Féin regarding the proposed truce.

Dominion home rule for Ireland is expected to be the outgrowth of the present negotiations, involving Unionists and Sinn Féiners and the British government, it was learned authoritatively here Wednesday. This degree of autonomy which has never before been conceded by Great Britain, will prove acceptable to all three parties, it was believed in semi-official circles.

The next important step in bringing about a settlement of the Irish question will be resumption of the conference between Eamonn De Valera and representatives of Ulster in Dublin on Friday. At that meeting, it was regarded as possible that Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, will accede to the Irish proposal of contention for a strongly federated Ireland as a basis for further negotiations. Smuts, premier of South Africa, who arrived in Dublin Tuesday in the role of mediator, will participate in Friday's conference. He is understood to possess almost plenipotentiary powers and, before attending the meeting, will visit both De Valera and Craig to ascertain exactly what each desires and the minimum of demands they will make to insure cooperation.

SEEK LOWER GRAIN RATES FOR WEST

Kansas Official Starts Movement to Prevent Serious Market Situation.

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Following a conference here Wednesday with members of congress from Kansas, Chairman M. Reed of the Kansas public utilities commission, announced an application would be filed Thursday before the interstate commerce commission asking for a reduction in freight rates on grain, grain products and hay on 185 railroads operating in the west.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, said that arrangements had been completed for filing the application for the rate reduction.

States of Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota have been invited to join with Kansas in an effort to show the commission that farmers and business men of the west are facing a grave situation that necessitates relief through the lower rates asked, Reed announced.

The interstate commerce commission will be asked to set an early hearing for the application. The Kansas public utilities commission will attempt to show that the railroads can reduce rates on grain and grain products and hay and also prove that relief is necessary.

UNEMPLOYED TO STAGE PROTEST

War Veterans and Foreigners Join to Demand Aid for Penniless Workers.

By Paul R. Mallon

By United Press Leased Wire

Bridgeport, Conn.—An army of 25,000 unemployed mobilized here Wednesday for a demonstration in the streets of this bustling factory city.

Veterans of the war joined hands with ragged "foreigners" to impress on the onlookers the need of thousands of penniless men out of work. Women carrying babies joined with their husbands in the demonstration through which they hoped to obtain relief from poverty.

"It must stop here, it cannot go on," said the speaker, "the central labor union and commander of the veterans of the World war, told the United Press.

"The thousands of men out of work in this town, as in every other factory town, are in need of immediate assistance. The world makes no move to assist them in getting work and saving them from starvation. This is our only way of protest."

"I believe there is a conspiracy among employers to hold out as long as they can for wage wages down to nothing. Day laborers who formerly worked for forty cents an hour, with pick and shovel, recently were offered twenty-five cents an hour. They cannot live on that."

After the demonstration, Treat said a formal protest would be sent to the state and city officials.

Police protection for the parades was arranged.

VOLIVA GIVES UP BLUE LAW FIGHT

By United Press Leased Wire

Zion City, Ill.—Satan can trail around with New York and other large cities on the end of his pitchfork for all Wilbur Glenn Voliva cares.

The overseer of Zion Wednesday handed the whole Manhattan island over to the devil to have and hold.

Voliva, has given up his plan of sending a white robed army of crusaders to New York and other centers to enforce the blue laws of Zion. He reached this drastic conclusion upon the return of Miss Helen Buhmann and Miss Belle Sehlhorn from the great White Way.

The two women had been down to New York for three months and returned without a single blue law or convert to their creed.

They told Voliva what an inhabitant of a big city thinks about. It's this:

Pleasure; dancing; movies; money; more pleasure.

The former ambassadors to the court of Beelzebub then inhaled the pure air of peaceful Zion.

SEE HARDSHIP TO RAISE SOLDIER BONUS MONEY

By United Press Leased Wire

Washington.—Difficulties appeared in the way of the soldier bonus bill which the senate took up Wednesday.

Opponents of the bill base their attack on the hardship of raising $1,560,000,000, estimated as the minimum of the cash bonus.

The soldier bonus bill, consideration of which started in the senate Wednesday, would take effect in July, 1922. The bill gives ex-service men the option of a cash bonus, paid up life insurance, an education, a home or farm or preference in entry on public lands.

Anglo-Jap Alliance Hinders Disarmament

Ambassador Harvey's London Speech Shows Reason for American Reluctance.

MOTIVE OF TREATY SOUGHT

United States at Disadvantage Without Membership in League of Nations.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington.—For several weeks the Washington correspondence has been asking President Harding and Secretary Hughes for information concerning disarmament. What, they have inquired, is standing in the way? To all has been given the same answer—a polite disavowal to discuss the matter in any form beyond the general statement that informal feelers had been put out to learn attitude of other powers.

Now, however, George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, and President Harding's personal and official representative on the supreme council, has at last lifted the veil of secrecy and confirmed what has been suspected, but never officially admitted, namely, that our relations with Japan constituted the chief obstacle to immediate disarmament. Here are the words in Colonel Harvey's July fourth speech at London, which conveys more significance than any other utterance on the subject made by spokesmen of the administration.

"For the first time in history the turbulent Atlantic has become as a mill pond, particularly eliminated from consideration of dangers so far as naval warfare is concerned. There is ground for good hope, however, that whatever apprehensions exist of serious possibilities on the Pacific may be dispelled sooner than is commonly anticipated. When, if at all, that splendid consummation shall be obtained in response to the apparently universal desire, disarmament will follow naturally and inevitably, and peace on earth will be assured for years at least, and it may be forever."

"Is this glorious aspiration too much to expect? Why should it be? Obstacles many and grave there are to be sure, but what are they? What may they be? Barriers surmountable by a concert of purposes on the part of all the nations directly concerned and no less directly responsible to others?"

Nobody in the Harding administration has heretofore made a point of the fact that the naval power of the United States was practically useless, or rather potentially unnecessary, while at the same time referring to apprehensions in the Pacific. It is true that the Concentration of American naval forces in the Pacific has been the result of a steady growth of suspicions that the next naval war would be fought in the Pacific. On the other hand, it is also a fact that, instead of allaying apprehension in removing distrust, the transfer of the fleet to the Pacific has been looked upon by the Japanese as a move requiring further activity on their part and hastening their naval building program.

Meanwhile, in the field of diplomacy several other moves have been made which have accentuated the fact that the special problems existing between the United States and Japan are solved, the friends of disarmament will be hammering away at a stone wall. If anybody else in the administration except Ambassador Harvey had drawn attention to "perilous possibilities on the Pacific," the utterance would have been passed by without significance. But Ambassador Harvey has been entrusted with the task of conveying the sentiment of the other governments concerning disarmament, and his conclusion, that apprehension concerning the relation between the United States and Japan must first be dispelled before there can be disarmament, is looked upon today as the frank answer and key to the whole disarmament situation.

The statement by Baron Shidehara, Japanese ambassador to the United States, to the effect that the proposed Anglo-Japanese alliance was not intended as hostile to the United States, is a recognition by Japan of the sentiment which has been growing in the United States against the renewal of the alliance. The British government has found it necessary to assure Canada and Australia that the Anglo-Japanese alliance does not require the British empire to assist Japan in the event of a war with the United States. Indeed, there is no escaping the fact that both Great Britain and the United States would have a difficulty in coming to an agreement on the reduction of armament expense, if their respective relations with Japan could be placed upon a firm foundation of true friendship. The Japanese, however, are really more eager to renew their alliance with Great Britain than is apparent on the surface, and the British are for discontinuing it without offering the pride of Japan.

If it were not for the peculiar situation that has arisen with respect to the refusal of the United States government to enter the League of Nations, the problems might easily have been solved. The League itself does not recognize alliances, unless

Role Played By Babies In Beauty Seems In Doubt

(By Harold D. Jacobs)

New York.—"American women should have fewer babies and their complexions and general health would take care of themselves," Mrs. Anne Kennedy, associate editor of the Birth Control Review, declared in an interview Wednesday.

Mrs. Kennedy made this statement in refutation of a theory advanced by Doctor Bretteiman of Paris, called to the United Press.

"If what Dr. Bretteiman maintained were true, the American women living in the congested districts of cities and in the poorer farming communities would be the greatest beauties in the world," she said.

"These women, with families of six to twelve children, always are prematurely aged. As a rule they have neither beauty of face nor figure, and their children generally are inferior, physically and mentally."

"Mrs. Margaret Sanger, with whom I am associated, believes that three children to be the ideal family—providing health and economic conditions permit the proper rearing of even that number. And with that comparatively small family, a woman must willingly undergo the possible partial loss of her beauty."

Contrary to what seems to be the general impression in America, Bretteiman said, motherhood really is not only an aid to beauty but is necessary if a woman wishes to realize the zenith of beauty.

"Venus was not a virgin," he said. "She must have had at least one and perhaps two children. Otherwise she could not have been as beautiful as she was."

Bretteiman declared that American women also make a great mistake in rearing their babies on bottles.

"The glands which function during maternity are connected with those in the neck which govern the complexion," he explained.

Bretteiman declared the effects of this practice of "evading the obligations of motherhood" were already in evidence, in that it was becoming more uncommon in America to find beautiful women women of middle age.

"America is a country of beautiful girls, not beautiful women," he said.

TAKE TESTIMONY AT KABER TRIAL

Father of Murdered Man, Who Brought Mrs. Kaber to Trial, First to Testify.

By United Press Leased Wire

Cleveland, Ohio.—Taking of testimony was expected to start Wednesday in the trial of Mrs. Eva Calhoun Kaber, charged with the murder of her husband, Daniel F. Kaber, wealthy Lakewood, Ohio, publisher, who was stabbed to death in his bed two years ago.

Moses Kaber, father of the murdering man, is expected to be one of the first witnesses called by the state. He will be used to establish the immediate facts of his son's death.

The elderly Kaber, more than any one else, is largely responsible for bringing Mrs. Kaber to trial and securing first degree indictments against five other persons. Besides Mrs. Kaber, her daughter by a former marriage, Marian McArdle, Mrs. Mary Brickell, mother of Mrs. Kaber, and another woman and two men are under indictment. One of the men under indictment has not been apprehended. He is believed to be the actual assassin of Kaber.

Counsel for both sides were confident a jury would be sworn in before noon Wednesday. The defense has used ten of its 15 peremptory challenges. The state still has two of its four.

SCHOOL NURSE IS TO BE ENGAGED BY FOURTH DISTRICT

Tax Budget of $150,150 Is Voted by Four Districts at Annual Meetings.

Need of a school nurse has been felt so keenly that two of the districts took up the matter at the annual meetings which were held in the respective sections Tuesday evening. The fourth district appropriated a sum in its budget for this purpose, intending to work out a plan of cooperation with the third to engage a nurse jointly. The third district discussed the matter but did not go on record of uniting with the fourth district. The matter is to be taken up later and it is possible that a satisfactory arrangement will be worked out.

There was little change in the size of the budgets adopted. The total tax levy of the four districts, as adopted by electors, was $150,150. Some appropriations were for the same amount and that of the second district was a trifle higher because of the purchase of a heating plant. With no contests or special issues to be taken up, attendance was small and the business of a routine nature.

Hackworthy Retires
Alexander Fahlsstrom was elected director in the Fourth district for three years to take the place vacated by R. F. Hackworthy who resigned after 18 years of service. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Hackworthy in appreciation of his long term of office and his splendid service.

The other officers on the board are John Hantschel, clerk and John Lowe, treasurer. A budget of $23,000 was allotted, the same as last year. It was reported that all of the teachers were hired for the year. The Richmond school is being redecorated and receiving necessary repairs.

Reelect Cary
A very small attendance was present at the meeting at the First ward school. Paul V. Cary was reelected director for three years. A budget of $40,000 was made which

RURAL MAIL BOXES MUST BE STANDARD

Postoffice Department to Make Final Drive to Remove Obsolete Boxes.

In a final drive to make all rural patrons of postoffices furnish regulation mail boxes, the fourth assistant postmaster general, Washington, D. C. has notified Postmaster Gustave Keller to furnish a list of all residents of the Appleton district who have not complied with this order. This list will be prepared soon by the respective rural carriers and sent to the eastern official.

"The vast majority of our patrons already have provided regulation mail boxes," said Mr. Keller, "but there are a few who have not changed, although we have notified them several times. These people will be given one more notice before we send in the names."

Rural carriers are instructed in the Washington order to report to the postmaster all boxes that are not erected according to the proper height, conditions and location. The postmaster, in turn, is to notify the owners about the irregularities and demand their correction. The postmaster then will send the names of all who do not comply to the fourth assistant postmaster general. Mr. Keller does not know what action will be taken in case names are sent in.

A movement was started sometime ago by the department to speed up the rural delivery through setting a standard under which rural mail boxes are to be provided. A regulation box is one of the long galvanized containers with rounded top, such as are common on all country roads. They must be located high enough on a post and close enough to the road so a carrier can drive up with his rig or automobile and deposit mail without leaving the vehicle.

Some of the obsolete boxes were not large enough or were unsatisfactory in other ways. Correction of this condition is not a hardship, Mr. Keller says, as the expense is slight. It is only a case of willingness to cooperate with the postoffice for efficient service. Regulation boxes on sale by hardware dealers are marked with the government's stamp of approval.

ORDER SALOONS TO OBEY NEW LAW

Police Department Will Require Removal of Screens, Bars and Booths.

Enforcement of the new state law which requires that all soft drink saloons be unobstructed to the public view will be undertaken by the Appleton police department following the meeting of the city council Wednesday night at which time permits will be issued to dealers in soft drinks.

Under the law just passed by the state legislature in regular session, no person licensed to sell soft drinks is allowed to maintain a standing bar or counter of any description and there must be no stall or booths of any kind in the place. The law requires, windows to be unobstructed, unpainted and otherwise unobstructed to public view. The new law provides that permits shall not be granted persons who are not citizens of the state and United States or who are not residents in the place where application is made. The Appleton city council has already announced its intention of issuing permits to none but law-abiding and reliable citizens.

It is likely that proprietors of drinking places will be given a period of grace in which to comply with the new regulations and make the required changes in their buildings. This period will probably extend not longer than August 1.

Approximately 50 soft drink saloons in Appleton will be affected by the new regulations.

Good Bump Had No Effect On Pickled Pair

Two men, unknown to Appleton people, decided to celebrate the holiday on Sunday instead of the day following. They drove into the city in a buggy, became well filled with the "forbidden fluid" and started to return home. They took the street which runs past the vocational school, in spite of the fact that the road was closed.

The two tottering men attempted to drive the horse around the barricade. The buggy leaped precariously and then went over on the pavement, throwing the men from their seats. Had they been sober they might have been killed or seriously hurt. As it was they picked themselves up and began to disengage the horse from the harness. After much trouble and fussing, the men finally managed to get things righted and they continued on their way.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN BRICK ROAD EXPLODES

By United Press Leased Wire
Sheboygan, Wis.—The intense heat Tuesday caused an explosion of the street pavement here.

The heat forced such a rapid expansion of the pavement that it gave way. Bricks were thrown into the air and there was a loud report, due to a rush of air. One woman, Mrs. Barney Pierce, was injured in the shower of bricks.

ST. PAUL MAN TO TAKE FIELD FOR AID BODY

B. E. Mayerhoff of St. Paul has arrived in Appleton to conduct field work in this vicinity for the Aid Association for Lutherans.

Mr. Mayerhoff made the trip here by automobile. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Leona, and Mrs. Henry Kahner and son Harold. Owing to considerable road construction now going on, Mr. Mayerhoff found unsatisfactory roads most of the way. Detouring over rough stretches was frequently necessary and due to dry weather and dust, much of the highway was rough.

Mrs. Mayerhoff is visiting her sister Mrs. B. Pekarski and her mother, Mrs. H. Wachlin.

HOW FRANCE DRESSES

From France come full-skirted taffeta gowns reminiscent of pre-war lavishness of dress materials. At St. Cloud, during the international tennis tournament, the full-skirted tendencies in the Parisian styles were evident. Not only are the skirts full but they are long. The girl on the left wears a taffeta gown with a flowered border on the skirt. The deep roll collar is typical of the French dressmaker. The sleeves are bell-shaped, the white lower portion having the same embroidered band as decorates the collar. Both gowns seem to be crying "Down with the short skirt!"

CITY'S LEADERS URGED TO START ON PLAN FOR CITY

Community Planner Sums Up
Appleton's Needs in Address to Rotarians

Leaders in Appleton were urged to get started at once on a systematic plan for Appleton's growth by Prof. Leonard C. Smith, city planner, in an address before the Rotary club Tuesday noon. He summed up Appleton's needs after describing the city's beauties and urged its business and professional men to lose no time in getting started on a plan which will provide for systematic and scientific growth of Appleton.

"You Appleton people certainly were born under a lucky star or else a lucky star led you to make your home in Appleton," Prof. Smith said in his address.

"Here are some of the reasons why you should rejoice that you live in a beautiful and healthful Appleton. First, the wonderful site in the fertile valley of the Fox located on the high banks of this majestic river, noted for its unsurpassed scenery and its great water powers—the former fact so important to your permanent beauty, the latter so fundamental to the growth of a great industrial city. By the way, no city can be great without industries and commerce. Second, your city is widely known as a great educational center for in addition to fine elementary schools, including a splendid vocational school, you have your famous Lawrence college, fulfilling your needs for higher education. Again as a result of a refined and educated population you possess lofty civic ideals. I rejoice to say, which in the past have found expression in splendid deeds. I refer to your great war record, when world democracy was in danger—the construction of your fine T. M. C. A., to the construction of the Lawrence Memorial chapel, and more recently your successful community drive for a $500,000 hospital.

"Your citizens, too, because of your leadership, may take great credit for the finest county system of concrete highways in the state. Closely allied to such county roads is your remarkable system of city pavements. Do you realize that you have better pavements than Milwaukee, or in fact any other Wisconsin city?

"Still again you should rejoice in a fine beginning for a system of parks, which may later serve every ward in the city, for nature has been unusually kind in furnishing almost ready-made ideal spots for parks and playgrounds. And so I might go on and on and enumerate the remaining 99 reasons which Appleton citizens have for being glad your lot was cast in such pleasant and favorable circumstances.

"I trust that in the suggestions and criticisms which I will now attempt to make you will give me credit for having improved the time spent in your midst to learn your pressing and future needs. Indeed it may well be, that in the last two weeks I have given more intensive and scientific thought to Appleton than any of your busy men have given during your entire residence.

"You all realize that no city and no individual can long stand still, but must either go forward or backward. Change is the law of nature, birth, growth, decay and death follow in certain and rapid succession.

"Appleton, like Oshkosh and many other cities, is at the parting of the ways—she must either go forward with increasing acceleration or drop behind like Oshkosh has already started to do. The decision waits on leadership.

"Now, if I have felt the pulse of Appleton rightly, you will not be content with past accomplishments, however great, but like all cities of vision, like all cities with a soul, you will interpret your remarkable natural advantages, the gifts of a most kind providence, as a call for better leadership, and better service for greater Appleton—the Appleton of the future. What you do or omit doing in the next few years, will vitally affect the welfare and happiness of your people.

"Now what are some of the city problems which impatiently await the united efforts of your whole community?

"Above all and because of all, you need a city planning commission composed of your chosen leaders and assisted by your most progressive and intelligent citizens. Happily the mayor has already announced his intention to appoint this commission this present week.

"City problems are in close relation to each other, and looking back to the past and forward to the future must be studied and worked out together. Experience shows clearly that piecemeal construction is in the end most wasteful and expensive. You need a city plan!

"You have long needed new bridges—the approach to your city is congested and dangerous, for you must go through the neck of the jug to enter. Your bridges, are east of the city's center line, with the result that part of your city which would furnish the finest building sites for homes is used as a cow pasture, and a golf ground. Your need is not a bridge but bridges.

"Again the bridge question is intimately related to an improved and properly articulated street system of main traffic highways to handle your Mrs. and fast growing traffic. To be able to have the wide and beautiful street called College-ave., but you have either adequate inlet or outlet to the avenue. College-ave. begins in the far west and ends in a narrow lane on the banks of the Fox, a fine street, but quite unrelated to the circulatory traffic system of your city.

"A city plan would provide a future solution to this important city problem, and include some suggestion also for the separation of grade crossings, many of which are already dangerous. Do you realize that practically every street in the city crosses a railroad?

Such a condition while unsatisfactory in a country town is doubly so in a real city.

"Do you realize that you need action on your school problem? Even a year ago, your schools were overcrowded, your high schools especially. You can no longer side step provision for two junior high schools. A city plan though would go further and pick out the best located lands for future school grounds, after a careful survey of the distribution of your school population and the direction and extent of its probable growth.

"Who does not realize that Appleton needs right now a modern system of garbage disposal, under the supervision of your municipal health department? Who can doubt that such an installation would greatly improve the city health and save many precious lives, especially of the helpless babies? Speaking of health reminds me that at a recent visit to your water plant, I found that the large intake of your drinking water was very close—dangerously close—to the outlet of the Walnut-st. sewer. To a certain extent, your water plant is a sewage disposal plant and we are drinking the affluent. With such an unlimited supply you should not find it necessary to use the water over and over again. All you need to do is to extend the intake above the sewer outlet. This condition is a striking example of piecemeal city planning as opposed to systematic city planning. Sewer, water, gas and pavements should be extended on not less than a five year program and not left to chance, politics or the limit of a twelve months budget.

"You are justly proud of your homes and your home loving people, but consider for a moment how you are sprinkling your residence districts with stores and factories. Do you not realize that this practice is fast ruining your homes and especially the homes of your working people. This can easily be prevented by the adoption of a zoning law. A zoning law too is a real help to industry and business as the lantern slides of local conditions clearly showed in last week's conferences.

"You rightly boast that your wealth

USERS OF PIERCE PARK PRAISE CITY FATHERS

Appleton people are beginning to appreciate what the purchase of Pierce park meant to the city. As they gazed over the fence in the past it was referred to as a "cow pasture," when its purchase was proposed. Now that it furnishes a shady refuge from heat, with no fences or "keep off" signs, criticism has changed to admiration and the city fathers are receiving more than one verbal "pat on the back" for their action.

Tables and benches have been placed throughout the park so families may go there for picnic lunches or to spend the day. Temporary lights also have been provided for the evening. The picnic of the Catholic Order of Foresters Monday demonstrated the value of having this choice outing center on the river front, with easy access by street cars. The park was used by many as soon as the fences were taken down and before any facilities were provided.

exceeds $25,000,000 and that you have practically no bonded indebtedness, but may it not develop that this is a condition to be ashamed of provided it should appear that this freedom from debt had been secured by side-stepping a million dollar need of bridges, schools and other civic needs. Your city is gaining in population at the rate of 400 people each year. How can your city grow larger or better unless you spend money for all the civic improvements, like schools, bridges, pure water, healthy homes, etc. Always remember that city planning does not mean spending more money, but rather spending money more wisely because of having a systematic plan prepared long in advance of construction or of actual needs. Every business man, every corporation, except our municipal corporations, believe in and practice this principle of looking into the future.

Appleton In Early Days

C. Milhaupt
Thirty-eight years ago I left Sheboygan and was on my way west when I stopped off at Appleton to visit a schoolmate, who persuaded me to stay here. I soon found work with James Monroe who owned the business I am now conducting. I bought the business after eight years with Mr. Monroe. A year ago we retired entirely from carriage and wagon work and catered to automobiles.

Automobiles were practically unknown here then. Dr. Reeve had a gas car, I remember, and he sold it to buy a steam car. The car was delivered from Milwaukee by my brother-in-law, Jacob Casper. The steam car was equipped with a regular steam engine and the water had to be heated before it would run. Some of the steam cars in those days were fitted with an automatic valve which regulated the supply of gas which was used as fuel. As the water became hotter the gas supply was cut off and when it began to get cold it was again replenished.

At one time there was a question as to whether the steam car or the gas car was the coming thing. But the gas automobile was much quicker er and in the years which followed the steam car became almost unknown.

My opinion of Appleton was all ways of the best. Many improvements have been made since that time. There were no pavements then, but the streets were in a better condition than shortly before they started paving. One of the worst streets was Appleton-st. It was covered with 2 or 3 inches of mud for several weeks after each rain. Strangers coming to town used to call it "Appleton Canal." I can remember the days when we used to carry our new buggies and hacks across the street to take them out by way of Superior-st., to keep them from getting muddy.

Thanks to the good work of some of our citizens, we at last have streets we can be proud of.

PEACE FOR IRELAND IN SIGHT

Affairs in Ireland appear to be moving with dramatic speed. The failure to bring about a conference between President De Valera of the Irish republic, Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, and Prime Minister Lloyd George, at the latter's solicitation, did not end the possibilities of a peaceful solution of the Irish problem. On the contrary the overtures for a settlement are continuing and peace now seems nearer in sight than ever before. After 700 years of strife, Ireland seems about to realize complete autonomy and possibly complete independence.

Conferences in Dublin, in which De Valera has made his first public appearance in months, have resulted in a frank expression of cheerfulness on the part of Sinn Feiners, while at the same time a spirit of hopefulness exists in London, as General Smuts, spokesman and mediator for Lloyd George, departs on his mission to Ireland involving momentous consequences. The most propitious phase of these developments is the spirit of conciliation and friendliness which seems to prevail. No one can undertake at this time to say what the basis, much less the details, of a peaceful understanding might contain, suffice it to say that the great forces of conciliation have temporarily displaced the forces of antagonism and that there is excellent reason for believing that the long struggle is about to be terminated to the satisfaction of both north and south Ireland and to the British government itself.

News of the progress of the conferences and negotiations will be received with tremendous interest in the United States, where the political fortunes and aspirations of no people on the face of the earth have so engaged American sympathy and concern as the persistent and courageous fight of Ireland for liberty.

EATING

According to Prof. E. N. McCollum of Johns-Hopkins University, the average American should eat about half as much as he does if he would live to a ripe old age and keep his pep. More greens and milk are the substitutes recommended.

The professor speaks as a health expert, and if his advice were heeded, there is not a bit of doubt that the doctors and undertakers would have less to do. The dinner table is a far deadlier place than the battlefield because the vast majority of people cannot resist the temptation to eat too much of what appeals to their taste.

This is particularly true during hot weather, when, if one is as interested as he should be in keeping his body and mind in top condition, he should eat sparingly of the heavy concentrated foods. And above all, during hot weather, forget the alcohol and drink plenty of cool, not iced, water. Drink it with your meals, slowly, and between your meals. Start your day with a glassful and finish your day the same way.

The following of these simple rules will pay big health dividends and greatly improve your disposition.

TAFT POPULAR CHOICE

It is given to few men to achieve their life's ambition. To do so by the route of the presidency of the United States gives William H. Taft a distinction unique in American history. His appointment to the chief justiceship of the supreme court, a position second in importance and dignity only to that of the presidency itself, is without doubt a popular act by President Harding. The public has known ever since Chief Justice White's death, as his successor. There has been plenty of time and opportunity for whatever opposition there was to make itself heard. The president assumed that, no objection being made, the country was at least satisfied to have the former president appointed, and acted upon the assumption.

The four senators, Borah, Johnson and La Follette—Republicans, and Watson—Democrat—who voted against confirmation, should be given credit for sincerity. They undoubtedly reflect the sentiment of a considerable body of ultra-progressives in both parties, who consider Taft too conservative to head the highest court. A man of the Brandeis type would have been much more to their liking. Who can doubt, however, that if the selection of chief justice had been by popular vote, Taft would have been elected overwhelmingly against any other possible candidate?

That this would not have been the result immediately following Taft's defeat for the presidency nearly nine years ago shows the great changes that occur in public sentiment. In Taft's particular case, the high character of his public services and private activities since he left the White House has been the greatest contributing cause to this change. The new chief justice will take on the great responsibility of his high office with the knowledge that the majority of his fellow countrymen have confidence in his honesty of purpose and ability.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN GERMANY

In a speech delivered at Marion, Ohio, August 28th, 1920, President Harding said: "I have no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace treaty with Germany." In his first message to congress President Harding appeared to confirm this view by stating his belief that the government would find it advisable to "engage under the existing treaty" with modifications and reservations. The passage by congress of the joint peace resolution has not helped to solve the problem of how in reality to make peace with Germany. Present indications are that there will be special treaties negotiated, entirely separate from the Versailles treaty.

During the progress of the campaign in a speech at Des Moines Mr. Harding said with reference to the American troops in the occupied portions of Germany: "They haven't any business there, and just as soon as we declare formal peace we can be sure they will be coming home as they ought to come." Formal peace has now been declared by congress but the question is still unsettled as to whether to withdraw American troops, some 12,000 of which are still in Germany. No expression has yet come from the White house as to whether or when the order for withdrawal will be issued, and there is now talk in congress of passing a resolution ordering the secretary of war to bring the troops home.

In the meantime, the advisability of retaining the troops there until questions at issue between Germany and the United States growing out of the war are definitely settled by separate treaty of "engaging under the existing treaty," and of giving the allies that moral assistance in completing the terms of peace which the presence of our troops contributes, presses for consideration. All of which illustrates the fact that the responsibilities of the presidency are bringing home to Mr. Harding and his able cabinet the fact that campaign declarations were more easily made than fulfilled, and that the exigencies of making peace are far more difficult and complicated, and more far reaching in their consequences, than the then opposition realized.

TODAY'S POEM

By Berton Bralley

FROM THE WOUNDED

We don't want cheers when we hobble past—
We never expected the cheers to last;
But after the country made a fuss
Concerning the things it would do for us,
It kinda seems that there's something wrong
Or we wouldn't be waitin' quite so long
For the things they promised us long ago—
Say, don't you think they're a trifle slow?

We didn't linger or wait at all
In joinin' up at our country's call.
And we wasn't slow in doin' our stunt
When he walloped the Hunnies at the front;
But now that the war is over, say,
It seems to us that this long delay
In payin' a part of the promised debt
Ain't just exactly what we should get!

We ain't expectin' no rousin' cheers,
But even after a couple of years,
You'd think this nation we battled for
Would still remember there was a war,
And after a while, perhaps, come through
With some of the help that it promised to!
And in the meantime, we hope and plan
And hobble along the best we can!

CHRONIC LARYNGITIS

Describing acute laryngitis the other day I mentioned that the larynx houses the vocal cords and that these two elastic cords assume different positions (approximated or separated) and different tensions under the control of half a dozen little pairs of muscles in the "Adam's apple."

Chronic inflammation of the larynx is commonly associated with some chronic, perhaps unrecognized lesion of the nasal passages or of a nasal sinus, and is prone to develop in public speakers and singers who are not well trained in the proper use of the voice or who indulge in tobacco. Tobacco smoke, the dust of such industries as stone cutting, metal working and milling, and sometimes irritating fumes or gases in chemical industries, are common predisposing causes of chronic laryngitis. About one-third of the patients having tuberculosis of the lungs develop tuberculous laryngitis secondarily, although through the popular policy of procrastration it often happens that the laryngitis brings the patient to the physician's attention.

About one in each twelve cases of chronic laryngitis is tuberculous.

It is in this form of prolonged laryngitis that the voice tires quickly and grows husky when used for a little while, growing weaker with any prolonged effort and perhaps falling entirely if the effort is kept up. Visible thickening of the covering epithelium of the vocal cords, or pronounced "nodes" thereon develop if the voice is not given a long rest, and these seriously impair the singing or speaking voice or quite destroy it, according to the situation.

Besides tuberculosis, another systemic infection common in all classes and conditions may be responsible for a chronic laryngitis, and that is syphilis, at least one-tenth of all cases of which, we should never forget, are as innocently acquired as any other disease can be.

I hope the reader will not fail to notice that I have not dragged in the meaningless and misleading term "catarrh" in discussing these upper respiratory conditions. The only reason why I have omitted that term is because there is no such condition as "catarrh" or "catarrh" outside of the come-on circulars and other bait of the humbug long-distance diagnostician and mail-order "specialist." It may be true that an occasional messback medical text-book writer (a lot of pretty poor ones) evasively cover his general incompetence, but that need not concern anybody in need of medical advice or treatment. "Catarrh" is on a par with "taking cold" or "contracting a heavy cold"—no doctor today would venture to offer any such unbecoming explanation of any illness, when speaking to a medical audience—though I believe it is still legal tender with the unenlightened laity.

There is no self-treatment indiscriminately helpful for chronic laryngitis, save prolonged rest of the voice and avoidance of the irritants mentioned. Careful medical examination of the nose, throat and chest is necessary to arrive at an accurate diagnosis, and appropriate treatment may then be applied for the individual case.

New Men In Congress

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C.—The Sixty-seventh congress is now three months old so far as its active work is concerned. New members to the number of 122—a record crop of "baby" congressmen—are by now well started on the road to the knowledge that there is a tremendous difference between State street back home and Pennsylvania avenue in Washington. Their importance in their own eyes has steadily shrunk since their advent here. They have not reformed the government, restored Liberty bonds to par, shaken the capitol dome with fiery oratory, or accomplished any other of their many dreams. One excellent reason is that the congressional system does not permit it, and they have not had a chance.

Haskin

A famous New York editor, when asked some years ago what compensation a senator received, replied, "Five thousand dollars a year and the privilege of membership in the greatest club in the world." House membership has never been defined so concisely. It might well be compared to the public schools of England. The new boy has to go through many soul-crushing experiences before he finds his proper level.

Trace the career of a new member. He has come successfully through a hot campaign on top of a successful primary fight. He is the big man of his community. The fates have put upon his shoulders the responsibility of leading to the quarterdeck of the Ship of State, wresting the wheel from the incompetent hands which have held it, and guiding the vessel safely away from the perilous shoals which threaten.

The President has called a special session of Congress. The rookie, who ordinarily would bask in the sunshine of home-town adulation for more than a year before coming to Washington, packs up his belongings and prepares to go to the Capital to put the government on its feet again.

On the Way to Glory

The boys parade to the station, bearing their standard bearer aloft on their shoulders. Banners and a brass band go before, and worshipping constituents follow. He makes a speech—the last one he will make for many months. He is wildly cheered, and is presented with a floral horseshoe, paid for jointly by the John Q. Smith Marching Club, the Volunteer Fire Department, and the gentleman who expects to be appointed postmaster.

The trip to Washington endures too long for this statesman to keep his respect secret. In the smoking room or the dining car he finds occasion to tell one or more—preferably more—of his casual train acquaintances that he is a member of congress on his way to Washington. Polite interest is aroused. Perhaps he is told what congress ought to do about the tariff, and certainly he gets a lot of advice about taxes from gentlemen whose only knowledge of taxation is what they have to pay on the fifteenth day of March each year, and quarterly thereafter.

The prideful young man alights at the Union Station in Washington. With a lordly air he indicates to an approaching Red Cap porter that he will permit him to carry his bag. The porter appears to be making for him, respect and subservient evident on his ebony features. He goes right on by, though, and eagerly snatches two suit cases from a fat shoe drummer who makes Washington twice a month, and is always good for a quarter tip. This is the first pin-prick in the balloon of pride.

Eventually securing a porter our hero emerges from the station and views for the first time the inspiring Dome of the Capitol, the scene of his labors henceforth, the particular welkin designed for ringing to the oratory bubbling within him. Reluctantly he withdraws his gaze, honors the perspiring porter with a well-worn dime for which he gets scant acknowledgment, and starts away to a hotel.

Where Were the Reporters?

At the hotel he gets scant attention. He manages to let the room clerk know that he is a Congressman. The clerk merely looks bored. Eventually a room is assigned to him. All evening the rookie Representative remains in the lobby or in his room. He wants to be accessible to the reporters.

Now comes his first real jolt. Not only do the reporters somehow fail to find him, but there is not even a line in the morning newspaper noting his arrival. Everyone has not been so slighted, he finds. The Speaker has been persuaded to give his ideas of the problems with which Congress must wrestle. The floor leader's views on the legislative program are set forth. The Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee has had something to say about revision of the tariff and taxation.

The tyro legislator spends his first day in Washington trying to find a boarding house. The tired-looking women to whom he applies do not bow down and worship at his feet when the new man acquaints them with the fact that he is one of the Members of the Sixty-Seventh Congress. The only result is a boost in the price the landlady was about to quote.

The formalities of the opening of Congress over, the President's message received, and the members sworn in, this particular new member attends to a party caucus. Bottled up in him and ready to burst forth his ideas of what legislative course must be pursued. To his chagrin he finds that everything seems to be arranged. He seeks recognition, but is informed that someone else has the floor. He begins to believe he doesn't amount to much, and feels it to be a privilege that he is allowed to remain and listen.

The Battling of Oratory

In the meetings of the House, he finds half a dozen men on each side apparently running things. These, he learns, are the leaders. Finally he seeks recognition.

The presiding officer puts the form question. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

The gentleman says he wants to make a speech. He is told that the member in charge of the legislature before the House has charge of the time. He appeals to him, and is brusquely informed that all of the time is allotted. The new man takes his seat, crestfallen. The balloon of pride, buoyant a few days ago, is now a flat and flabby thing.

His committee assignments carry the process of deflation a bit farther. Before disillusionment set in, the new Congressman had looked for a berth on the Ways and Means Committee or the Appropriations Committee. When the assignments are announced, he discovers that perhaps his only assignment is to the Committee on Flood Control, and he comes from a district where it rains only fifteen inches in a year.

William Tyler Page, now clerk of the House, and Joe Sinnott, head doorkeeper when there is a Democratic majority, have seen many generations of Congressmen come and go, and find little difference in the crop every two years. Time after time new members appeared who came to Washington with the expectation that the House Office Building was intended also as a Congressional dormitory. These men had no intention of squandering any part of their $7,200 salary on living quarters. Even when informed that they could not put cots in their offices, some have tried by stealth to save money in this way. One member who lasted only one term employed his son as secretary to keep that much more money in the family, and both of them, it was found out, were living in a barn.

The Senate with more dignity, a longer term, and fewer members, is not a parallel of the House, but occasionally a new Senator is a little too obstreperous for the veterans of that body. There was one not so long ago who burst forth into speech at the least provocation, and a week after taking his seat was calling all of his colleagues by their first names. Some of the older Senators resented this, but did not show it at first.

But one day, in the midst of a beautiful peroration, one of the older Senators arose.

"Will the Senator yield to the Senator from —?" the Vice President asked.

"I am always glad to yield to my colleagues who are my elders in point of service in this body as well as in age," the new Senator responded with a flourish.

"I move that the Senate do now adjourn," the veteran quietly proposed. Much to the chagrin of the ambitious orator, that is just what the Senate did, right in the middle of his speech.

Q. How many Justices of the Supreme Court are older than Justice Day? L. E. R.

A. Justice Holmes is 80, and Justice McKenna is nearly 78. Justice Day is third, being 72 years old. Justice Vandevanter is 62, Justice Pitney, 63, Justice McReynolds, 59, Justice Brandeis, 64, and Justice Clarke, 63.

Q. Do the reformers who object to prize fights object to boxing as a sport? A. R. H.

A. Boxing is generally recognized as a harmless, character-building sport. Usually it is not condemned by those who protest against prize fighting.

Q. How should a nest for a setting hen be prepared? R. E.

A. Three or four inches of damp earth should be put in the bottom of a box of suitable size. The nesting material is put in next and may consist of hay, chaff or straw. This should be packed down firmly, and a circular nest shaped, slightly deeper in the center than at the sides. This shape prevents eggs from rolling out from under the hen, but care should be taken that the nest is not deep enough for the outer eggs to crush those in center.

Q. When was polo first played? W. A. D.

A. Polo is thought to be the oldest game played with stick and ball. It probably originated before the Christian era in Persia, where odes were written to celebrate the glory of the game.

Q. Where can I reach the manager of the Girl Scouts? E. G.

A. The Headquarters for the Girl Scouts of America is located at 527 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Q. What State borders on most Great Lakes? T. W.

A. Michigan borders on four of the five Great Lakes, Superior, Michigan, Huron, and Erie. No other State borders on more than two.

BOOKS POPULAR IN HOT WEATHER

Circulation and Number of Readers of Free Public Library Increases.

More library books were issued from the Appleton Public library during the month of June, 1921 than during any previous June in the history of the library. A total of 5,783 books was circulated. This is considered a remarkable number for such an extremely hot month. Of this circulation, the adults drew 3,865 and the juveniles, 1,923, making an average distribution of 22.25 books per adult and 22.25 books per juvenile.

A total of 189 new books was added to the library, 81 adult volumes and 108 juvenile books. The library now has 14,993 volumes. During the month of June 52 new cards were issued of which 20 were adult, 24 juvenile and 8 student cards. Seven cards were withdrawn during the month, three of which were adult and four juvenile. The total number of cards in force now is 6,389.

Damaged in Collision

Two automobiles were damaged when Vincent Forster, driving south on Lake-rd. collided Monday night with a machine driven by Oscar Popp who lives on Ballard-rd. near Appleton. Popp was driving north when the machines crashed. A front wheel of his car was broken, the front axle bent, and the fender broken. Forster's car had similar damages, including a jammed radiator. Occupants of the machines were not injured.

Cyclist Hurt

While riding his bicycle at the corner of College-ave. and Appleton-st. Tuesday evening, Fred Sawisky, 937 Fourth-st., was struck by an automobile driven by L. A. Briggs, 574 Morris-st. Sawisky was pushed against the curb and thrown from his wheel. He was slightly injured.

Casserole Is Useful

Fireproof earthenware casseroles are found in too few kitchens. The cheaper cuts of meat may be cooked in a casserole in such a way that the most fastidious hostess need have no compunction at serving them.

Earthenware imparts no flavor and causes no change of color. All juices are retained in the sauce.

Menu for Tomorrow.
BREAKFAST—Shredded pineapple, smoked haddock on toast, watercress, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Tomato succotash, brown bread and butter, tea.
DINNER—Hot pot of hodge podge, asparagus salad, brown bread sandwiches, strawberry shortcake, coffee.

My Own Recipes.
Thin sandwiches made of brown bread and butter make a most acceptable accompaniment to asparagus salad. The salad itself is so delicately flavored that a highly seasoned cheese accompaniment would kill the salad.

Smoked Haddock on Toast.
One-half small dried haddock, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1/4 teaspoon minced onion, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, few gratings nutmeg, pepper, brown bread toast.

Pour boiling water over fish, cover and let stand 10 minutes. Remove skin and bones, then flake. Heat milk and add fish. Simmer 10 minutes. Strain and chop fish. Heat butter and cook onion without browning, add fish and parsley. When hot add eggs beaten with 3 tablespoons of the milk the fish was cooked in. Season with pepper and nutmeg and cook, stirring constantly over a slow fire till mixture thickens. Pour over triangles of buttered brown bread toast and serve very hot.

Hot Pot of Hodge Podge.
One and one-half pounds neck of mutton, 4 or 5 medium sized potatoes, 1 onion, 2 tablespoons bacon fat or "drippings," 1 cup boiling water, minced parsley, dried savory herbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.
Wash, peel and slice potatoes. Cook 10 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain. Trim mutton and cut in pieces for serving. Melt fat in frying pan and sear meat on both sides. Put alternate layers of potato, onion and meat in casserole. Season each layer with salt and pepper and powdered herbs. Pour over boiling water, cover and cook in a slow oven for an hour and one-half. Remove any fat that rises to the top before sending to the table.

Confessions of a Bride

THE BOOK OF MARTHA
Miraculous Cure for Jealousy

Why had he not told me that the storm had marooned him with Katherine at Chang Foo's?
And why, oh why, didn't he answer my questions?
Thus, after long brooding, my suspicions, my hurts and my anger reacted and exploded.
Then tears—and more tears!
My husband regarded me much as a stern parent looks upon an unreasonable child. He remained silent, distant, superior. But I did not feel rebuked as he expected and I did not whimper. "Oh Bob! Bob, darling!" as I had done in many a hysterical moment of my married life.
I merely dried my eyes and decided to keep still. We finished our luncheon in silence.
My serenity produced an effect at last. Bob was perplexed. He was wondering what had happened to the soft, forgiving, tearful little wife he had known.
For the first time in his life, he took the initiative toward a reconciliation. He came around to my side of the table without a word, plucked me up in his arms and carried me to a great chair before the blazing logs of the living-room fireplace. Then he cuddled me close in his arms.
I hid my face on his shoulder and we sat so for a long, long time, without a word. And my heart sang because I was glad, so glad, that he and I once more were a-tune!
Finally my husband kissed me and whispered:
"Dearest! Why didn't you ask those questions last night if you wanted to know so badly?"
"Because you should have told me everything without being asked!"
"Perhaps! But you do love it so, Jane, whenever you hear Katherine mentioned. I hate to get you started on your pet antipathy!" Bob softened the sting with a closer embrace.
"I'm never going to row it again about Kath or anybody else! I want you to understand that, Bob Lorimer! And really I'm sorry I started this!" (An exaggeration, but characteristic of my contrary mood.)
"But, dearest, I am glad!" Bob's

The Twins' Wish
"What reward do you wish?" asked the Fairy Queen.
Nancy and Nick looked at each other, then down at their Magic Green Shoes that had taken them so faithfully on all their adventures.
"If you please, I should like to help you some more," said Nancy rapidly. "Is there anything we can do?"
Nick spoke up before the Fairy Queen could answer. "Oh, yes, Your Highness, we should like to go on more adventures, and may we keep out Language Charm and our Shoes? They are such a help to us!"
The Fairy Queen smiled, then frowned thoughtfully, then smiled again, nodding to the Magical Mushroom, her faithful servant, as much as to say, "There's a way out of our difficulty, and a fine way at that."
"Why, yes, children, there is a way you can help if you really wish to. I've just had a telegram from Sprinkle-Bow, my Weather-Man, who lives in the sky, that he needs help dreadfully."
"And may we go?" cried the twins in one breath.
"Yes," nodded the Fairy Queen. "You may. But the trouble is, Sprinkle-Bow isn't popular. Nobody in Meadow-Grove Land likes him, or in Helter-Skelter Land, or in that other place you have visited called the Land-of-Deer-Knows-Where."
"But," said Nancy in a puzzled voice, "how can they tell whether they like him or not when he lives on a star?"
"Why, you see, dear," explained the Fairy Queen, "Mr. Sprinkle-Bow has to spend ever so much of his time on the earth finding out just what kind of weather folks want. But there's no pleasing them. Everybody wants different weather at the same time. Especially in the spring when outdoor matters more than indoors."
"Oh, we'd love to help him!" cried the twins. "May we go at once?"

JUNIOR COLLEGES BLOCKED BY VETO

Gov. Blaine Favors Addition of 2-Year College Course in High Schools.

Madison.—Governor John J. Blaine today vetoed the junior college bill and in his message to the legislature suggested instead that high school courses be extended from four to six years. After reviewing the provisions of the bill Governor Blaine says:

I favor affording every child greater opportunities for education. There are three plans for extending these opportunities. One is by establishing so-called junior college, under the plan of this bill, another is by increasing the facilities at the Normal schools for giving two years of college work and the third is to extend the high school courses from four to six years.

Of the three suggested plans, the simplest, the cheapest and the best, is the third, the extension of the four year courses in high schools to a six year course, just as rapidly as the local communities are able to do so.

There is a problem relating to higher education in Wisconsin that grows out of the rapid increase in the attendance at the University. The increased interest on the part of young men and women in education beyond that of the elementary school is nation-wide, and the enrollment in the high schools of the country has increased in the last six years over 26 per cent and therefore the increased attendance at the university follows.

Wisconsin has attempted to solve the problem, and has permitted the normal school regents to extend the courses of instruction in normal schools to include the substantial equivalent of the instruction given in the first two years of college course. I understand such course has been established at the following normals: Eau Claire, La Crosse, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Stevens Point and Superior.

Less Tax Expense

The first two years of college years in many cities will mean less expense for the taxpayer; it will permit the development of vocational and commercial courses in those communities where such courses are more particularly desirable; it will mean the possibility of utilizing the existing buildings, the supervising principal, the instructors, and the saving of a tremendous overhead expense involved in the establishment of a separate so-called junior college. It will permit of a more democratic method in the establishment, supervision, and conduct of the additional courses, leaving to the community desiring such additional courses perfect freedom of choice as to the kind of work that should be afforded the young men and women of that particular community. It will prevent the domination of local undertakings by either the state university or any existing state board.

The system proposed by this bill involves the possibility of enormous expense and disregards the utilization of our present existing buildings, supervision and instructional force now afforded. The fact is, and it has been demonstrated clearly throughout this session, that there is a great deal of confusion concerning our educational system and institutions, and no plan should be adopted that affords such tremendous possibilities for the expenditure of public funds as this bill does, without mature deliberation. In fact, this bill is only patchwork upon our present educational system, and before we embark upon a new system of schools, the consequences so far reaching as this bill proposes, in my opinion it is far better to study the problem so that greater information of plans which may have been successful elsewhere might be obtained, to the end that our entire system and administration may be simplified and coordinated.

"If ever a plan of this kind once takes root, it is a difficult matter to readjust it along the lines of more simplicity and greater economy. For the reasons suggested, I feel that our educational interests will be better served by leaving the question to a subsequent legislature to solve. In the meantime, more complete information can be obtained, and the experiences elsewhere can be learned, and then legislation can be enacted along the lines that will mean greater results at the least cost."

and Truck Is Only Holiday Mishap.

Kaukauna.—Fourth of July accidents in Kaukauna were limited to a collision between two automobiles carrying in the morning above Beauvoir hill. Raymond Clume was driving along the road and turned out to allow a Fassbender boy, driving a milk truck to pass him. The cars were said to be going fast when they struck. Clume has his rib cracked and he was bruised about the body. Both cars were badly damaged. Fassbender is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fassbender Hollandsdalen.

The game was a hair-raiser and several times the Freedom players lead in scoring. Up to the eighth frame the score stood 5 to 4 in favor of the farmers and then a timely double by Engerson with two men on the paths saved the day for the Royals. One of the Freedom players was injured.

FIND EMBRYO BANDITS ON ROAD TO OSHKOSH

An overnight camping trip Sunday was enjoyed by five Appleton boys, Harry Leth, Edward Schuh, Lee Schroeder, Carl Wentz and Carl Bernger. The youths equipped themselves with blankets and provisions and started southward on their bicycles. They found an inviting spot on Little Lake Butte des Morts, near Neenah.

Everything was pleasure until the farmer demanded $2 for the camping privilege. The boys had enjoyed a swim and a meal but decided to move on. Finding Neenah's auto carapete unattractive they started for Oshkosh, where camp was pitched at the municipal clubhouse about midnight.

En route to Oshkosh the boys ran across what appeared to be an embryo bandit, who had a tire lying on the highway and were equipped with revolvers with which to "stick up" motorists who might stop. The boys were ordered to hurry on and lose no time reaching Oshkosh city limits. The campers returned home Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Barnett returned to their home at Milwaukee by automobile Wednesday, after spending several days with friends and relatives here.

INFORMATION TO THE PUBLIC IN GENERAL

Whereas, we have been continuously probed with questions concerning the controversy between the carpenters and the association contractors, we wish to state that at the meeting held some time in April, the sentiment of that meeting was, that $50 per hour was not too much, and furthermore, the carpenters had orders to be at work the first of May. Which they did, but when reporting for work they were told not to go to work but, await further developments, which never matured on account of outside influence. Our working rules published in Saturday's edition were always satisfactory for the past six years. WHY PROTEST AGAINST THEM AT THIS TIME?

Drawings made from actual photographs of rubber magnified 200 times

Ordinary tire rubber
The white areas are "lumps" of unevenly mixed substances. Every "lump" is a weak spot that reduces mileage.

Crolide Compound Rubber
—has no large "lumps." Notice how finely divided the particles are. This even texture is what makes Thermoid Tires wear so long.

What makes a tire go bad when it looks as sound as new?

A COUNTRY ROAD! No garage or repair shop within call! A time perhaps when every minute counts! A blow-out comes! And you thought the tire was as sound as new!

What is it that causes such a tire to go bad? Why is there this constant threat of tire trouble?

A few years ago four tire experts in the Thermoid Rubber Company decided to find out. They learned that the whole life of a tire hinges on the evenness with which the necessary strengthening materials are mixed with the pure rubber gum.

If the resulting compound is filled with "lumpy" formations, the tire rapidly weakens and "blows out" on the road. If the compound is blended evenly and smoothly, the result is greatly increased wear.

Remarkable new rubber compound

Studying the problem further, the Thermoid scientists at last perfected Crolide—a rubber compound that reduces "lumpy" formations to a minimum—that eliminates premature tire troubles. This even-texture rubber does not weaken with the stretching and straining that goes on inside a tire.

Crolide Compound is today used exclusively in the manufacture of Thermoid Tires. Either the Cord or Fabric type gives maximum mileage under all road and weather conditions.

We have compared the Thermoid Tire carefully, point by point, with other tires on the market today, and we confidently believe that no other tire compares with it for service and durability.

You are invited to call and see these new tires for yourself—also the famous Crolide Compound Tubes.

Professor Budlong Puts Tanlac To Test

PROF. C. J. BUDLONG, Manchester, N. H.

"It's an actual fact, I'm in good health for the first time in thirty years and I owe my present splendid condition to Tanlac and nothing else," was the emphatic statement of Prof. C. J. Budlong, well-known and highly respected citizen of Manchester, N. H., residing at 42 School street.

"Practically all my life I had had rheumatism, and when I say rheumatism I mean every word of it. It was all over my body and especially bad in my feet and legs and there were times when I couldn't get from my bed to my chair without help. And from the time I was a boy I couldn't sit down and eat a good meal without being in misery afterwards and I would have terrible pains around my heart and frequent attacks of palpitation and dizziness.

"I had a stubborn case of constipation, was troubled awfully with bleeding headaches and hardly knew what sleep was. My suffering had almost made a complete nervous wreck of me and I was so weak I wasn't worth a nickel as far as work was concerned. I thought my troubles had a life-long grip on me and was about as discouraged as a man ever gets.

"Well, before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I realized it was different from anything I ever tried. It suited my case exactly. And now for almost the first time since I can remember I can eat anything I want and digest it. I haven't an ache or a pain and have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I just feel good all over and am full of life and energy these days. Everywhere I go I talk Tanlac. It hasn't an equal."

GUERNSEYS LEAD IN JUNE TEST WITH RECORD AVERAGES

Glocke and Blondy. Take Individual and Herd Honors in 30-Day Test.

Guernsey cows had a corner on all honors for the month of June in the Dale and Hortonville Cow Testing association, according to the report of Orin A. Milnark, official tester. L. W. Glocke, Dale, and Guy O. Blondy, New London, stood at the top of the list for having the best testing individual cows and herds.

Havens Jane, a purebred Guernsey, owned by Mr. Glocke, made the exceptional record of 82.9 pounds of butter fat for the month from a milk flow of 1,603.7 pounds. Her percentage of fat was 5.17. The second high cow is Bessie, a grade Guernsey, owned by Mr. Blondy. She gave 1,882 pounds of milk testing 5.6 per cent fat, and 79.4 pounds of butter fat.

Mr. Blondy has the high herd record for the month. Seven cows averaged 92.8 pounds of milk, with an average of 46.6 pounds of butter fat. The Glocke herd of six purebred and grade Guernseys averaged 83.1 pounds of milk, butter fat average 43.9 pounds.

Mabel, the grade Holstein owned by Arnold Roessler, Dale, which made her owner famous in the county because of her 90-pound record for May, died recently of clover bloat. Her loss was a serious one because of her exceptional earning capacity.

Fifty-eight cows owned by members of the association made records of more than 40 pounds of butter fat for the month. They are:

Make Old Water Plant Into Pool, Hall Says

City Could Double Swimming Facilities With Only Small Cash Outlay.

In response to a widespread demand that the city provide another municipal swimming pool, Arthur J. Hall, chemist in charge of the city filtration plant comes forward with the suggestion that the old city pumping plant be converted into a pool.

At present the old plant is of no use and is falling into decay. Mr. Hall believes that with comparatively little alteration it could be made into a first class swimming pool. He points out that its location is ideal insofar as practicability and supervision is concerned. Its nearness to the new pool would make it possible for one person to supervise both places if this were deemed necessary.

More than 500 people are using the present pool daily and it is believed that 1,000 more could avail themselves of its use if there were adequate facilities. There are only 65 dressing booths however, and it has been necessary for two people to share each booth since the present spell of hot weather began. In this way 130 people can use the pool at once, but it is too crowded to be comfortable.

With the one pool it is also necessary to alternate swimming days for men and boys and women and girls. This program prevents the "daily dip" that many people would like to indulge in. Construction of another pool would solve this problem as the men and boys could use one pool and the women and girls the other. Another objection to the one pool is that no accommodation is provided for small children. Every day, children between the ages of 4 and 8 come to the pool and must plunge in with the older ones and be subjected to the thoughtlessness of some of them. Besides this, the pool is too deep for the small children.

There has been talk for some time of constructing a new pool. It has been suggested that the city build a pool somewhere on the northeast side of the city. People from that district would have the pool nearer but the program of alternate days would be in effect just as with the present pool. It would be more difficult for the pumping plant officials to keep in touch with the needs at the pool if it were located on the other side of the city.

Those who are enthusiastically advocating construction of a new pool, however, declare that its popularity would not depend upon its location as people would be willing to travel some distance to use it. It is likely that if definite action is taken toward the construction of a new pool, the suggestion Mr. Hall has made will receive serious consideration.

The old pumping plant contains four rooms. In the largest of these are the pump pits and engine foundations. By simply removing the floor and tearing down the old engine foundations, the pump pit would be open and unobstructed. This is 12 feet or more in depth and would be the main pool. The stone walls of the pit are in good condition and would require only a coat of cement to make them water tight.

On the southwest side of the building is a room where a shallow pool for children could be constructed. The northwest room could be furnished with lockers and would serve as a dressing room. A narrow compartment on the northeast adjoins the main room which would contain the big pool. This compartment could be fitted with showers for the use of swimmers.

If it was desired to have a larger pool than the main room of the building affords, it would be possible to excavate northeastward, parallel to the street, and extend the pool to a full length of 60 feet with a width of about 24 feet. This would be nearly the size of the present municipal pool.

The pool would be filled from the Walnut-st. main which runs directly from the reservoir at the corner of Prospect and W. W. Sts. It would be drained by a pipe which passes from the old plant to the river. Both intake and outlet connections could be made with little trouble as main and pipe are still in the positions where they were previously laid. Being just across the street from the filtration plant, those in charge of the pumps would know exactly the water requirements of the pool.

While these plans are merely tentative it is believed they have sufficient merit to warrant their consideration if the matter of constructing a new pool comes before the city council.

HOW IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD RUINS A WOMAN'S HEALTH—

AND MAY MAKE HER WRINKLED, AGED AND CAREWORN, GIVING HER FACE A PALE, HAGGARD, SICKLY APPEARANCE

For want of iron you may practically be an old woman at from 30 to 35, weak, downhearted and "all fagged out." You may be in such a highly nervous irritable state that you "go all to pieces" on the slightest provocation, while at 50 or 60 with good health and plenty of iron in your blood, you may still be young in feeling and so attractive and full of life as to defy detection of your real age.

It's not always the youngest woman that is most sought after—there is an indescribably alluring fascination in the rosy cheek, the inviting lips and sparkling eyes of a blood filled with iron. You may be afflicted with iron starvation of the blood and not know it, just as thousands of other women are.

It is said that about one person in three in America today suffers more or less from malnutrition—lack of nourishment, which is caused not by lack of food, but by lack of iron. Iron is sufficient iron in the blood to enable you to get the strength and nourishment out of your food. Indoor life, over-eating and modern methods of cooking are sapping the iron from the blood of hundreds of thousands of women. Our forefathers, to whom history refers as a nation of red blooded Americans, ate the husks of grains and the skins and peels of vegetables and other coarse foods rich in strength giving organic iron, which the modern woman does not get.

To make up for the great loss of iron caused by the life woman is compelled to lead she should eat more such iron-containing vegetables and fruits as spinach and baked apples and take organic iron like Nuxated Iron from time to time to help her blood and revitalize her worn-out, exhausted nerves.

Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance of weak, nervous, "run-down" folks in two weeks' time. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Nuxated Iron comes in tablets only—never in liquid form. Always look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

DECIDE IN FAVOR OF 2 NEW BRIDGES

Bridge Committee Will Recommend Lawe and Cherry-st. Bridges to Council.

In a meeting in the city hall Tuesday afternoon, the committee on streets and bridges, passed a motion recommending that the city council take action in regard to constructing a high level bridge over the Fox river at Lawe-st. and a viaduct over the river and canal at Cherry-st.

This action was taken after a lengthy discussion in which the proposed project of a viaduct at Lake-st. figured strongly. Some sentiment was expressed in favor of a double-decked viaduct at Lake-st. which would accommodate both interurban and vehicle traffic but opponents of this proposition said citizens living in the neighborhood of Lawe-st. were demanding a bridge and could not be expected to acquiesce in any action that might deny it.

Tentative plans for the Lawe-st. bridge provide for an incline structure which would carry vehicles from the river level on the south side of the river to the top of the Lawe-st. hill. The viaduct at Cherry-st. would be built high enough to permit the passage of most boats.

The committee also went on record in favor of retaining the name of Pierce park for the newly acquired park property.

TOMMY GIBBONS IS LOGICAL FOE FOR JACK, KILBANE SAYS

Johnny Says Carpenter Hit More Blows Than Dempsey But He Lacked Steam.

BY JOHNNY KILBANE, Featherweight Champion
Jersey City, N. J.—The next logical opponent for Champion Dempsey is Tommy Gibbons.

Kilbane

Gibbons would have put up a better fight against Dempsey than Georges Carpentier did.

Dempsey won in the round I predicted in my N. E. A. articles and the blows that put Carpentier out were the blows I forecasted.

Carpenter was knocked out because he didn't use those famous brains of his; because he failed to stay out of the clinches. Boxing was the method by which Georges could have won. He was advertised as a better and more skilful boxer than Dempsey, and he proved this superiority beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Georges was a fool not to stand up and box all the time. Whenever he boxed he easily beat Dempsey. Dempsey had more weight, more strength and more stamina. This overcame Carpentier's greater speed and boxing skill.

Why Carp Lost
Carpenter lost because he let himself get into clinches where Dempsey, with his 20 pounds of excess weight, could lay that weight against him and wear him out and weaken him with short jabs.

In spite of Carpentier's handicap of choosing the wrong method of fighting, he fought an even fight up to the fatal fourth round. It was plain to me that Dempsey was beating him in the first round in the clinches by using short uppercuts, mostly lefts.

I give Dempsey the first round, but the second round unquestionably belonged to Carpentier. He was boxing in this round and he was too fast for Dempsey.

Jack was missing and Carpentier was landing worth while punches. I judged the third round a draw, with Carpentier landing more blows but with Dempsey averaging things up with his superior strength.

Carp Hit More Blows
Taking the fight as a whole, Carpentier landed more clear blows than Dempsey did, just as I forecasted.

If Carpentier had boxed all the time and danced his way out of those deadly clinches as he did so admirably in the second round, he might have won.

Carpenter didn't do the thing he could do better than Dempsey and he tried to do the thing that Dempsey could do better than he could.

That was Carpentier's fatal mistake.

The Frenchman surprised many by the splendid fight he put up. He had Dempsey groggy in the second round. And he did this in spite of the fact that he was weakened by the punishment he received in the clinches during the first round.

I predicted Dempsey would win in the fourth round with a left hook to the jaw, and this actually was the beginning of the end. It put Carpentier down for the count of nine and Dempsey followed up with a shift of the same blow. A left to the body and crossing with a right to the jaw. That was the knockout.

Dempsey hasn't slowed up since he met Willard.

I think he should fight every three months to keep that championship and his first opponent should be Tommy Gibbons.

NOW THEY START TO PICK CHAMP NINES

Dope Has It That Pirates and Indians Are Winners in Major Leagues.

By United Press Leased Wire (By Henry L. Farrell)
New York—Figuring the "fourth" as the half way mark, it begins to look like both the major league pennants are "in."

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cleveland Indians close to the middle of the season seem to be almost sure winners in the two races.

Both clubs are going along playing steady, easy ball, taking the breaks well and getting the best out of their talent.

George Gibson has been getting good pitching all season and his club is playing a great defensive game as well as packing a good punch in the pinches.

The world's champion Indians have been leading the league just because they possess the stuff of which champions are made.

Tris Speaker has had a lot of bad luck all season. His brothers—Coveleskie, Bagby and Mails, who ought to win a pennant alone, have been awfully slow in getting away and he had a tough break to overcome in the accidents that deprived him of Bill Wambegans and Steve O'Neill.

The two New York clubs look like the runners up.

The Giants afflicted by their ancient malady, infield trouble, are just moving along in second place. John McGraw's great pitching staff turned into an "in and out" and the club generally has been a disappointment.

The Yankees possessing the greatest wealth of material in the major leagues, cannot make a million dollars worth of stars do ordinary work.

Muller Huggins has a great ball team except for his outfield. His catching department and three or four pitchers.

He has the great Babe Ruth and a lot of prima donnas. Babe wins a game now and then with a homer, but loses just as many with his terrible work in the field. Wally Schang, who ordinarily aims to be a first class catcher, has been no better than the relegated Truck Hannah.

The Boston Braves are proving the surprise of the National circuit and the Cardinals, after getting away to a bad start, are rounding into some of the form that was predicted for them before the start of the season.

Washington goes right along in the American league winning games and the Tigers are being led in the first division by Ty Cobb who is helping Tris Speaker to show that a player can do things besides play.

The Browns with all their hitting talent, can't get along without pitchers.

BARBERS LOSE TO SCRIBES
IN SLUGGEST TUESDAY

The barbers shaved the scribes pretty close at Brandt park Tuesday evening in a twilight baseball game but not close enough to draw blood. The Post-Crescent team emerged from the "battle" 13 to 11 victory. It was a slugfest with all kinds of plain and fancy batting, good and bad fielding and indifferent pitching.

Leininger, Post-Crescent left fielder, whaled the ball against the left field fence and scooted around the four sacks when the pellet got lost in the tall grass sending in a run ahead of him. Three barbers worked on the hill against the newspaper men. It is probable another game will be played Sunday morning, the barbers refusing to admit they cannot play as good a game as the newspaper gang.

Sandlotters Bigger Than Pros

The National Baseball Federation, the largest players' organization in the world, is pushing further west. It already controls over 100,000 sandlot players.

President James H. Lowry, Indianapolis, is planning a campaign to extend the influence of the federation to Pacific Coast cities.

The annual meeting will be held July 11 at Cincinnati to organize for the work ahead.

The purpose of the organization is to standardize baseball among the amateur players and the semi-pros.

It controls 200 teams in Cleveland, O., and about the same number in New York City, Pittsburg and Chicago.

There are three different classes of players allied with the federation. The Triple A and the Double A permit players to receive small salaries, while the A class is strictly amateur.

Teams play in groups for sectional championships in their respective classes and a small world's series is staged in the fall.

Johnstown Pa., won the Triple A pennant last year, Cleveland the Double A and Detroit the amateur consolation.

The sandlot body has the distinction of having drawn more people to a single game than any ball game ever played. A crowd of 115,000 people turned out in Cleveland to see the White Motors team win from Omaha's crack semi-pro nine.

Of sandlot graduates now pasturing in the majors and starring George Uhle of the Cleveland Indians stands out. This is one of Cleveland's main standbys this year.

The organization is very strict though fair in its rulings. Stealing of players by one town from another is not permitted.

Teams are supported many different ways. That is left to the cities themselves. In some cases the players contribute to the general expense fund. At other places the gate receipts are relied upon.

The officials of the federation, besides President Lowry, are J. F. Pettit, Don Novario and C. C. Townes, Cleveland; Tom Nokes, Johnstown, Pa.; Ralph Davis and W. S. Haddock, major leagues control but 400 players, while the National Association of Baseball Leagues has about 20,000 players under its thumb.

Judge K. M. Landis will be asked to assume the job of honorary president of the sandlotters at the coming meeting in Cincinnati.

Even the big leagues have to look up to the sandlot body so far as interest and size counts. The two

No Thriller Monopoly

Fans can see most anything they wish in the Amco league this summer.

No team has a monopoly on all the thrills.

If you want to see the best pitcher in the circuit go out and see Kid Gleason's outfit in action any afternoon Red Faber is harnessed to the bus.

The smoothest working infield—take a day off and go out to the park when Hugh Duffy is in town with his Red Sox clucker.

The longest hitter—Babe Ruth & Co. The long hitter—Harry Heilmann & Cast including Ty Cobb.

The most power—Tris Speaker and his world's champions.

The only baseball clown—Nick Altrock, in person.

The greatest player—George Sisler plus John Tobin and the St. Louis Browns.

The unexpected—Connie Mack and his relicking kids.

Uncle's Rakeoff.

Uncle Sam is getting a full set of nickels at the expense of sport this year.

His rakeoff cuts deeper than any one else's.

Spring races at Bowie, Pimlico and

St. Louis Browns humping staff, has been on the shelf for leaving the club without permission of the management. Shocker is a pretty sweet little mound artist when he is right and the St. Louis team will probably miss his services badly because he always had the knack of turning in victories.

Many at Brighton

Brighton beach was crowded Independence day, the principal attraction being the Heth Carnival company. The bath houses were swamped and could not begin to accommodate the crowd that called for bathing suits. It was one of the biggest days in the history of Brighton beach.

Dr. H. A. Wolter of Green Bay was a weekend guest of his brother, B. C. Wolter.

And Jess Willard bobs up again. He burst forth with a statement that he wants another crack at Jack Dempsey. We have to smile. The former title holder better stick to the Kansas wheat fields if he knows when he is well off. Dempsey would put the cleaners under Jess so quick that the big fellow probably wouldn't last as long as Carpentier did. What's more we doubt very much if Kearns would care to match Dempsey with Willard because it is doubtful if the fight would draw much of a gate.

They are trying to match Tommy Gibbons with Carpentier. This ought to be a good bout and, if Gibbons should come through with a win over the Frenchman, he would be entitled to a fight with the champion. Gibbons is stepping on a vicious and indifferent pitcher. He is knocking 'em all cold. His long record of knockouts entitles him to consideration among the big fellows even if he doesn't size up quite as big as some of the other claimants. However, Gibbons should wait awhile before he mixes with superman Dempsey.

Another good pitcher has gone wrong. Urban Shocker, star of the

JACK DUCKS WEST TO DODGE RUMPUS

By United Press Leased Wire
New York—Jack Dempsey, champion of the world, is on the Twentieth Century limited, speeding toward the west.

The conqueror of Georges Carpentier, presumably is on his way to Salt Lake City to visit his mother and family. He left suddenly Tuesday night when the International Reform Bureau threatened to bring him into court Wednesday to face charges of assault and battery on the Frenchman.

Jack Kearns, his manager, did not accompany him but he could not be located here Wednesday.

Although Tex Rickard, promoter of the world's championship fight, last Saturday, suggested that Dempsey could present a self defense plea inasmuch as the Frenchman hit him first in the contest, the champion will not return until the agitation of the reformers has blown over.

Rhineland Farmer

KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Rhineland—A series of quarrels on Tuesday culminated in Charles Fischer, 57 years old, a farmer living four miles from here, beating his wife to death with a neck yoke and then hanging himself.

Fischer and a 15 year old son of the woman by a previous marriage were driving to Rhineland when they met Mrs. Fischer, who had been away for two days, returning to the farm. According to the boy, Fischer grabbed a neck yoke from the wagon box, jumped to the road and struck his wife several times over the head, crushing her skull. When she fell bleeding and unconscious to the ground, he continued pounding her and then choked her. With the help of his stepson, Fischer lifted the body into the wagon box and drove back to the farm, half a mile away. The boy hurried to an adjoining farm and telephoned the authorities.

When the officers arrived Fischer had disappeared, and after an hour's search his body was found in a woods hanging from a tree.

L'IL ARTHA' WILL TRY TO COMEBACK

Jack Johnson Says He is Guaranteed $30,000 for Fight With Harry Wills.

Leavenworth, Kas.—The world is soon to see again the golden smile of the new Jack Johnson.

When he walks outside the cold prison walls July 9, a free man, he'll be in fighting trim.

He aims to build anew the career which made him and which dropped him to the bottom.

Prison life has hardened his muscles. Uncle Sam's simple diet has rebuilt his dissipated body.

"I weigh 230 and am as hard as nails," says Jack.

"And, sah, I is ready foh da best of 'em."

"I'm to get $30,000 foh a match with Mistah Harry Wills in New York. That is, I'm guaranteed that much with a privilege of 35 per cent."

"Thirty thousand ain't bad foh a man like me, jes' gettin' out o' dis heah place."

In preparation for being a free man, the former champion has ordered his tailors to build him a dozen suits of natty clothes.

His first match is scheduled with Jack Glover of Chicago the night of his release at Leavenworth.

BLAINE VETOES THREE MORE BILLS

Madison—Governor John J. Blaine sent three more vetoes to the legislature today.

In vetoing Bill No. 148 S, which stated was doubtless promoted by some charity organization to "cure loan sharks," the organization had doubtless been misguided and that instead of curing the sharks it would in effect legalize the most unconscionable rate of interest. He calls attention to the fact that the maximum rate permitted to be charged at present is 10 per cent per annum, while the proposed bill would permit a rate of 3 1/2 per cent per month or 42 per cent per annum.

Bill No. 221 S, amends sections 2276a of the statutes providing for certificates of heirship and is vetoed for the reason that it is no better than present law and may mean a confusion in interpretation.

Bill No. 338a, requiring town clerks to provide printed sample ballots for a town election is considered useless machinery and expense.

Miss Johan Ognive has returned from a two weeks' camping trip to the Chain-o-Lakes.

Tuesday's hero—Babe Ruth. The hambino smacked his thirty-first homer of the year and the Yanks beat the Athletics, 7 to 5.

Powell was thrown out at the plate in the ninth trying to score from second on a single and the Braves fell before the Phils, 6 to 5.

The Boston Red Sox lost their fourth consecutive double header, dropping before the Senators, 7 to 5, and 4 to 1.

Home runs by McHenry and Hornsby helped the Cardinals beat the Pirates, 8 to 2.

Sotheron, the Brown shine baller, pitched his first game for the Indians and beat the White Sox, 16 to 4.

Palmero's eight bases on balls and two errors helped the Tigers take the third straight from the Browns, 3 to 2.

BRITAIN SHOWING LITTLE HOSTILITY TOWARD GERMANS

Islanders Are Taking Detached View of German Situation, House Says.

COLONEL EDWARD M. HOUSE Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Co.

London—Great Britain seems at last to have turned the corner and it is expected that she will now begin to retrieve the fabulous losses sustained by reason of the strike of coal miners. It is difficult to compute these losses for it is probable that indirect and intangible losses are even greater than those for which we have figures. The strike itself, the negotiations and the final adjustment have been typically British. It is doubtful whether another country could have had such an industrial upheaval without violence and bloodshed and without leaving more rancor.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the strike, Great Britain began to pull herself together and go ahead with the day's work and more active interest now is being taken in continental affairs. One finds here a different view from what one finds in France of the war's aftermath and of things thought essential to the recovery of Europe's equilibrium. The French view is local and self-centered; the English view has a wider horizon. All Germans look alike to the Frenchman and the only good ones are those that are dead.

The average Englishman does not share this opinion. He is able to differentiate between them. Some are thought to be still bent upon having a Germany whose militaristic and materialistic power must some day away the world. But unlike the French he is able to see another type more in line with the thoughts and purposes of Atlantic democracies and it is this kind of German the Englishman seeks to encourage.

The British have a broader and more detached view because of their world encircling empire but also because of that silvery arm of the sea known as the English channel. France on the other hand, is close to the troubles which are vexing Europe and feels herself the "center of overseas democracies." Her horizon therefore is somewhat limited by the river Rhine.

It may also be said in passing that the English view of Ireland is not so detached as that of the French or Americans nor is the American view of Mexico and the negro problems as detached as that of the French or English. Therefore we should be tolerant in our judgments. The outlook for a general betterment of European affairs has never been so good since the war as now but if this is to continue, stable governments are essential, particularly in France and Germany. If the present German government is to remain in power it must be able to produce some gain favorable to the policy it is pursuing towards meeting the treaty requirements. When Dr. Walter Simons' government refused to accept the demands of the London conference, the entente occupied certain cities on the Rhine and created a customs barrier between the occupied regions and Germany proper. When the present government signed the London agreement it was expected in Germany that those penalties will probably fall and if it does the present favorable outlook will be superseded by an unfavorable one.

Since we withdrew from participation in European affairs Great Britain has become stabilizer and has generally used her influence in the right direction. Her labor difficulties seem to be composed for the present and if peace can be made with Ireland it will give British influence and

Must Take Study Course To Learn New Game Laws

Legislature Mussed Up the Sporting Dope With Revision of Session.

Outagamie county's roster of real sportsmen who take a try at trout fishing, duck hunting, quest for deer and a few jaunts to nature's playgrounds during the year for other purposes are "cussing" the legislature for musing up the dope. After weary hours studying the measurements of fish, the kinds of birds that can or cannot be shot and how many, the nimrods have learned that the durned solons came through the session with enough changes for a winter's course in learning how to duck the game wardens or keep out of court.

An angler who drops a hook beneath the surface of the waters of a Wisconsin trout stream between September 1 and April 30 will be nabbed for his fun. This is the new closed season.

Black bass now have permission to leave their watery domain 15 days earlier than usual. The season opens June 15 instead of July 1, except in Big Green Lake, where it still is July 1. The minimum size of muskellonge to be caught has been increased from 24 inches to "10 pounds or 34 inches."

Any bird peacefully roosting on the waters now reposes in perfect safety—if the law is obeyed. Penalties are provided for shooting at aquatic fowl with a rifle when the birds are resting on the surface of the lake, or on the ice.

Nobody who has the misfortune to live in a state where hunting and fishing are unknown can duck into the Badger state now for a week or ten days and gobble up a lot of good game or fish that ought to belong here. The legislature decreed that "settler's hunting licenses" may be issued now only to persons who have lived in the state at least 30 days, and who have taken up residence therein.

Deer hunters won't have to try to measure the horns of a promising looking buck from a distance of 100 feet to half a mile before taking a shot. They never did, 'tis true, and this perhaps brought a change in the law. It now says "one buck less than one year old." The law does not say it will be necessary to walk up to the trade an additional impetus in world affairs. At one time and another she has tried the policy of isolation and it is interesting to have the opinion of so competent an authority as Viscount Grey on this subject. In a recent address he said that isolation had been for them a "most costly and dangerous policy" and yet the policy of isolation has its advocates here as indeed it has at home.

Theoretically this policy is an appealing one—to wish to go one's way in peace and plenty and let the rest of the world do likewise. It is not an unnatural desire but unfortunately the best observers do not believe it can be done. A smaller nation might be able to hope to maintain such a position but it is like wishing for a room for our people to hope to do so. If we do not share in giving direction to world affairs we may some day find ourselves where we were in 1917—the center of the vortex of a world war.
